

TISPOL Bulletin, 10 July 2012

Dear Colleague,

We have been delighted with the efforts made by many countries to send information for use in the Bulletin. It has been quite an effort to work out what we can include and what will have to wait, so do bear with us if your item is not highlighted below. We will use every item submitted to us, assuming it is relevant and appropriate. So, thanks for your patience and do please keep sending us your stories.

In this, our last TISPOL Bulletin before we take a short summer break, I am delighted to offer you the opportunity to watch a short video explaining the purpose of our Road Policing Activities Conference which took place last month in Brussels. Road policing activities allows us to maximise the use of our resources on the road.

In working together to keep the EU safe, we are sharing our experience and skill with other important partners, all of whom see the value of co-operating with traffic police. Whether these partners are within the police (EUROPOL being an excellent example), or other agencies such as Customs, or indeed in the private sector, we all know that policing the roads can make a big impact on the joint objective of a safer Europe. We can make an impact against serious and organised crime, we can help target mobile crime and we can help reduce the profits that criminals enjoy. Working together makes every partner more effective and allows us to make Europe's roads safer and more secure.

Also in this edition, we have a video interview with Charis Evripidou, as Cyprus takes up the European Council presidency until the end of the year. Do take a look at that, and don't forget to check the details of this year's TISPOL Conference, which takes place in Edinburgh on 2 and 3 October. There's an exciting programme and a line-up of excellent speakers, so don't miss it!

May I take this opportunity to wish you a good summer. Our TISPOL Bulletins will resume on Tuesday 21 August.

Ian Hamill, General Secretary

Road Police Activities: watch the video

More than 100 people attend TISPOL's RPA Conference in Brussels. The value of the event is demonstrated in our video.

More >

Joint control by Latvia and Lithuania

Representatives of the traffic police and road safety organisations of Latvia and Lithuania met recently at the Lithuanian-Latvian border.

More >

'Big hit' in Germany praised by Minister

North Rhine-Westphalia's Interior Minister has praised the public after the state's second speed control marathon.

More >

Massive Polish effort through EURO 2012

More than 5,000 Polish traffic police officers were involved in the recent football tournament... what's more, road safety showed an improvement on 2011.

Watch a video, too >>

Czech training for motorcycle officers

Officers from the Czech Republic and Slovakia came together for advanced training at the end of June.

More >

Last chance to enter our competition!

If you haven't already entered our fun summer competition, then go for it right now - it will only take you a few minutes, and you could win our 50 euro prize!

More >

© TISPOL 2000-2012.

Unsubscribe